Scar and skin clinic opens on Gold Coast

DERMINK is a pre-eminent scar and skin clinic that's recently opened a new facility on the Gold Coast, says doctor Theresa Arnold.

She said using permanent medical grade pigments, individually blended and colour matched to each patient's skin, scars and other skin imperfections could be rendered permanently invisible.

Dr Arnold has completed more than 10,000 procedures at her clinics in San Francisco and London, permanently camouflaging cosmetic and other surgical or trauma scars.

"Australians now spend more per capita on cosmetic procedures than Americans, so it was inevitable we would need to open a clinic in Australia to satisfy the increasing demand," Dr Arnold said.

"For some patients their scars are a reminder of physical or psychological trauma, for others they are just an unwelcome irritation.

"I work with people who have tried everything from make-up to lasers and surgery. There is no typical patient."

Dr Arnold said she had worked with models, celebrities, men and women with post-operative scarring and children with birthmarks or other skin imperfections.

"In the case of people who experience visible scarring after facelifts or other surgery, sometimes they feel doubly scarred; guilty for simply wishing to look their best or worried that their partner won't understand why they sought out surgery in the first place," she said.

"You would be surprised how many of my patients' families don't even know they have had surgery at all."

Dr Arnold said Dermlink offered treatments to mask all scarring including post cancer surgery, face lift and breast scars.

It can also treat sun and age spots as well as burns, skin grafts, acne scars, birthmarks, vitiligo and stretch marks.

She said treatments were discreet and non-invasive with no down time and new patients were entitled to a free no-obligation consultation.
